

TWO RUINED HOMES

A Marriage Notice Recalls a Story Which Reads Like a Romance.

THE REVEL TO A DOMESTIC SCANDAL IN NEW YORK CITY.

How Two Closely Allied Households Were Broken Up by the Perfidy of a Wife and Husband—A Crime Committed Under a Weight of Shame—The Sanford-Jackson Scandal.

NEW YORK, April 2.—[Sanford-Jackson—on Monday March 2, by Rev. J. C. McInerney, assisted by Rev. E. M. Grant, Nathan H. Sanford to Adele T., daughter of W. B. Lassell.] The foregoing notice has appeared in several New York papers within the past few days. It is seemingly an open announcement of the marriage of two people, but it is so carefully worded that few people will recall the combination of the strange and tragic circumstances which preceded this ceremony. Adele T. is the daughter of W. B. Lassell of Mount Vernon. She is also the divorced wife of Henry Martin Jackson, the ex-cashier of the sub-treasury of this city, who, in October, 1887, absconded with $10,000 and she was co-respondent in the divorce suit instituted by Elizabeth Sanford against Nathan H. Sanford in October, 1888. Mrs. Sanford gained her suit, was granted alimony and the care of her children and is now living a lonely life in a little uptown flat. Jackson is serving a six years' sentence in the Erie penitentiary. But the chief actors in the drama, who brought these things about and who, in fiction, would be singled out as special subjects for the avenging hand of Providence, are the two who are now united in the bonds of matrimony and have just rung down the curtain upon a marital marriage and the blithe sound of March.

IT IS IN THE BIRTHDAY DAYS.

Henry M. Jackson and Nathan H. Sanford are cousins. In their boyhood days they were schoolmates and chums. They sat on the same bench, bit from the same red apple and built up a friendship which grew and deepened with the years. In quiet ways they helped each other and watched each other's upward course with interest. In time they both married and the two men found time to run back and forth occasionally. About four years ago the demands of Mr. Sanford's business became very exacting and his presence in New York seemed to be required two-thirds of the time. He usually put up at the Jackson residence, and Henry being busy was entertained by his cousin's wife. Early in 1886, when the time of the wedding was reached, he was at first incredulous and indignant, then suspicious, finally miserable. He could not, it is said, "bunch" that his friend and wife would deceive him, but everybody else believed it, and began to look at him playfully. He said nothing, however, so the story grew until one night in August, 1887. At that time he and his wife were visiting the Sanfords at Goshen, and Jackson became more and more disquieted. On the occasion mentioned the four people in the drama were playing cards, when without the slightest warning Jackson threw down his hand and exclaimed: "Sanford, they tell me that you and my wife have been seen together in places where they should not be looked for. This was effectual, of course, and the explosion which followed loosened the foundations of the Jackson and Sanford homes. The suspected couple denied everything, however, and the affair was temporarily passed over. But Jackson began to drink heavily, to his work, and to grow morose and unsocial.

THE TRUTH AND FLIGHT.

Almost three months after the wedding, he helped himself to $10,000 of the Treasury funds and fled the country. The surprise at his action was only equalled by the surprise at the comparatively small amount of money he had taken. He had more than a million in possession at the time and Treasurer Cass admitted that he could easily have taken the whole sum and escaped safely. His flight was not discovered for two days, by that time he was in Canada, where he stayed a short time and then sailed for Europe. He remained in hiding in Scotland until February, 1890. In the meantime, the suspicions of Mrs. Sanford and these were strengthened by Jackson's flight. Mr. Sanford's visits to New York became more and more frequent. Two or three times a week he boarded the train for the metropolis and, finally, the wife decided to investigate. She could not believe that her friend Mr. Jackson was involved. She at last asked the advice of Lawyer S. V. Fulton of Queensbury, who, in a bunch of questions he engaged the services of a detective agency in his city. There was interesting reading in the report, which soon came to Mrs. Sanford. Her husband had been seen to enter very frequently a certain questionable room, and simultaneously with his visits a woman came and went. The wife used to go into hysterics over these, but at her lawyer's advice she waited for "some more definite" facts. The wretched lady eventually depicted with her veil, and Mrs. Jackson was recognized. Then occurred the strongest scene of the second act. "Good afternoon, Mrs. Sanford, and good afternoon, Mrs. Jackson," said he. There was a stormy scene, which ended in tears and a general admission. That very night Mrs. Sanford left Goshen, and went to her home with her. She took up her residence in this divorce. Defense James T. Swanwick took testimony in his office during the summer of 1890. In October of the same year an absolute divorce was granted her in the superior court by Judge Tracy. Mrs. Jackson disappeared for a time, but finally reappeared at the residence of her father, where she lived in strict retirement for a time. Sanford remained in Goshen attending to his coal business and the whole matter was apparently ended.

TO KISS HIS MOTHER.

But the sparks were only smoldering. In February, 1890, Jackson, the embittered, returned to his country. His friends say it was at the request of his aged mother who lives in Roseton, Pa., and who needed a son's assistance. However that may be, he came, he was arrested and confessed his crime. He was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary with hard labor. While passing the sentence the Judge stated that a mitigating circumstance in the case was the fact that the prisoner was suffering from domestic troubles at the time he committed the crime. Jackson went to Buffalo to serve his sentence, and the old mother out of her mind. He was later told by a former friend of both parties that he was thoroughly cognizant with all the facts. "In August of 1890," said this informant, "Mr. Lassell, the father of Mrs. Jackson, took steps to secure for her a divorce from Jackson on the ground of desertion. The circumstances of the case were so weak that it was impossible for the divorce to be granted here at least. So he took Adele to his home in New York, and there he was granted them by the Dakota courts on some technicality and everything went as they had planned it. Mr. Lassell had the summons served on Jackson in August, 1890, of course, Henry being in prison, could do nothing. I don't suppose he wanted to, either; he was probably satisfied to let things take their course. Adele came back to the East a free woman, and then her father took things once more into his own hands and made Sanford marry her. This had been his intention all along and it was for this reason that the Dakota trip and rushed the divorce through. I don't know whether Sanford was willing or not, but under the circumstances there was nothing he could do but acquiesce. They all showed remarkable skill in fixing up the wedding notice, for Mrs. Jackson's friends in this city never knew her maiden name, or if they ever heard it they had probably forgotten it. There is another interesting feature in connection with the wedding. According to the divorce granted Mrs. Sanford, Sanford is not allowed to marry again. How he got around this I do not know, but I presume Lassell straightened matters out somehow."

A FLAT FOR PARADISE. The latest, in the case, in addition to the wedding, is a concerted movement among Jackson's friends to secure a pardon for him. It is thought that this can be done before Hill goes out of office. A petition will be circulated, and a great deal of interest is taken in the affair by the old acquaintances of the embittered. It is thought that the marriage of the thief and flight would be somewhat mitigated by Jackson's domestic troubles, as well as the fact that he confessed his treachery and saved the Government the expense of a trial. Mr. and Mrs. Sanford are off on a brief honeymoon. Next week they return to Goshen and begin their new life in the home where the present wife lived the former only a few years ago.

A Cure For Drunkenness.

And one that can be administered without the sufferer's knowledge, has been discovered. Ask any druggist for Dr. Haines' Golden Specific. The beauty of the remedy is that it creates no sickness, it is perfectly harmless and the lower of alcoholic stimulants finds his appetite gone, and consequently he has no desire to indulge the taste. Try it. See advertisement headed "Drunkenness" in another column.

METHODS OF EDUCATION.

Princeton's President on "The Shortening of the College Course."

PRINCETON, N. J., April 2.—The March number of the Princeton College Bulletin, a quarterly record and review edited by President Patton and members of the faculty, will appear to-morrow. One of its most interesting articles is that of President Patton on "The Shortening of the College Course." In it the President says: "Boys should leave the preparatory school in the fall, then they graduate, and should graduate as bachelors of arts a year younger than they ordinarily are. Then after three years in the prosecution of special or professional study they would take their degree of Ph. D., or receive their diplomas in law, medicine and theology. I do not think, however, that this would be so well attained by shortening the college course, and here I am in accord with President Gilman of Johns Hopkins. The work is usually done in the freshman year of your colleges can be better done in college than in school. It must be the result of the large part grows out of the conditions of college residence and the influence students exert upon each other. To shorten the period of college life by taking a year out of the curriculum would be a serious loss to the under-graduates as well as to the college corporation."

The principal event in Methodist circles during the week was the determination to erect a church building for Marvin Chapel, Eleventh near Sidney street. All of the churches of the Southern Methodist denomination will subscribe, each minister pledging his congregation for a certain amount. Dr. Matthews of St. John's led off with $8,000, and Dr. Carmichael gave $5,000. This amount taken together with other subscriptions received upon the occasion will permit of the erection of a suitable building. Rev. J. Stephen, the pastor, is a young man, and his success in getting the building is looked upon as quite an achievement. Work will begin in the near future.

Catholic Orphan's Home. The committee appointed by the Catholic Orphan's Aid Society some weeks ago to solicit subscriptions for the new orphan's home to be built at the Narrows-gauge tracks and near the depot, has been successful. It is being estimated that they have already received subscriptions aggregating $25,000, which is as much and more than was expected in so short a time, surpassing the most sanguine expectations of the board. The new structure will cost about $100,000, and will be commenced at once. The present asylums at Fourteenth and Clark avenue and Tenth and Bidde streets are inadequate to the needs of such institutions in St. Louis. The building will be finished and ready for occupancy in about six months. The work has been done in a commendable, however, because it is the outgrowth of our historical conditions.

Liberty Evangelical Mission.

Since the Liberty Evangelical Mission removed into its new home, 1608 Franklin avenue, it has met with unprecedented success. The meetings are well attended, and under the superintendence of Mr. W. C. Coleman the Sunday-school has more than doubled its numbers. The thirteen rooms of the mission house are now in active operation. In addition to the thirty-three free matinee seats in the dormitory the manager, Rev. E. T. Coleman, is using all his efforts to supply twenty-five more seats for the mission. During the past month the mission has had more applications for food and shelter than any period during the winter. The work has become so great that the Rev. Mr. Coleman has called a meeting of the Board of Managers for next Tuesday night to ask an assistance to help him in this great and practical work of looking after the body as well as the soul of his fellow creatures in this great city of St. Louis.

No Ethical Society Lecture Sunday.

Mr. M. M. Mangasarian, the assistant of Prof. Adler, in New York, who was to speak at Memorial Hall Sunday morning, has been prevented by special circumstances from coming for this occasion. The regular lecturer had already promised for the next two Sunday mornings to East and to deliver a platform of the Ethical Society in Philadelphia. Under these circumstances, as it was not possible to secure another lecturer for this date, the hall will be closed on Sunday morning. A week from Sunday morning the address is to be on "The Ethics of the Future." The party will be held at the residence of the bride and after springing the surprise upon her father spent a most sociable evening.

LAST WILL.

On Wednesday evening Miss Ida A. Wall of Scotland, Pa., was married to Mr. John M. East of this city. The marriage was very quietly celebrated in the Central Christian Church at 9 o'clock in the evening. Rev. J. Stephen, the pastor, officiating. There were two attendants, Miss Julia Ulrich, who was the bride's maid, and the groom's best man, W. G. Graves, who acted as the groom's best man. The bride wore a simple gown of dark blue silk and carried a bouquet of white roses. After the ceremony the young couple drove immediately to their future home on Olive street.

How All Ye That Hunger.

Morris' Restaurant, 100 Olive street, popular prices. Open Sunday. The Second Christian Church will celebrate its anniversary Sunday, April 12. It will be a celebration of the church's centennial, and the new building which the congregation now occupies at Eleventh and Tyler streets.

Down the political dictators.

Down the spoils "combine."

Down the Municipal Assembly hoodlums.

THE "Chillern Hundreds" appears to be about all Mr. PARNELL can get at present.

Down the corrupt gang of hoodlums and politicians who want to loot the City Treasury.

It is a matter for congratulation that not a single American was killed in the Morewood riot.

THE question of newspaper circulation in St. Louis has now reached the point where silence is not golden.

The Independent movement is a business movement by the citizens of St. Louis in behalf of the city of St. Louis.

The success of the Independent ticket depends upon the desire of St. Louisans to have honest municipal government.

The result of the Sligo election will doubtless indefinitely postpone Mr. PARNELL's proposed resignation unless the ex-leader has made up his mind to retire.

The issue of vacancy between Councilman COMFORT and Mayor NOKAN with reference to the latter's support of the former, the public must consider the probabilities of the case.

A THREE-COLUMN apology for the late Republican Congressmen Senator Plumb is an indication that the desperate situation of the party is fully recognized by leading Republicans.

The score among the disreputable machine bosses over the business movement of citizens to take the spoils out of their hands is developing into a panic. It can be made a rout on election day.

FORTUNATELY there is a treaty between Italy and the United States in which both nations are pledged not to hurt each other in case of war. The situation therefore may be viewed with complacency.

COUNCILMAN COMFORT has stood by the Mayor in the Council, and it is only natural that the Mayor should stand by COMFORT in his campaign for re-election, the COMFORT declares he has promised to do.

The situation in the Pennsylvania coke regions should demonstrate the protected manufacturers that the cheapening of American labor by the importation of cheap foreigners has drawbacks which are not overlooked.

The Governor has signed the bill revising the law on fees. It is needless to say that this does not revise or revoke the current for the coal oil inspectors.

The "combine" between the Mayor and the State President of the Alliance had "pull" enough on the subject to prevent the State Transury from getting its grip on any part of the $22,000 paid every year in St. Louis for the organization, and was instructed to pay the balance of the same.

PENNSYLVANIA LABOR RIOTS.

About 12,000 laborers at the coke works in Pennsylvania have been for nearly eight weeks out on a strike against a system which the Philadelphia papers have depicted as a combination of oppressions well calculated to make desperados and criminals of its victims. They have had the support of public opinion and the pronounced sympathy of the press in their demands for better treatment. But the strike is one of the means the coke companies rely on to diminish the supply occasionally, to put up the price of product, and keep the workers in a condition of unpayable want. The result is an outbreak of violence on the part of some of the starving wretches, which the State must of course suppress at any cost of blood and treasure. There is no question about that.

But a very serious question for the people of this country is how long shall they aid and abet or even tolerate an alleged labor protection system which is continually producing such results. The Philadelphia papers say that these strikers are the lowest and most ignorant of Huns, Poles and Italians, imported in excess of any real demand for their labor at living prices, but imported nevertheless by the cargo, and contrary to law, to take the places of other strikers. Before they have been long enough to learn the language of the country, or the rights and duties of American citizenship, they are driven into a disorderly strike against what even the Protectionist Philadelphia Press denounces as "the man-eating policy" of the employers and the manifold injustice of their "company store" and wage-docking systems.

The prisoners of Siberia's mines and Georgia's convict camps, according to all accounts, do not fare much worse than those who are "uttering the bitter cry of defrauded manhood throughout the mining regions of Pennsylvania." The former, at least, suffer according to law and cannot complain of illegal oppression. To the extent of righting such wrongs every American voter is his brother's keeper. After suppressing the riotous acts of labor we should pay some attention to the lawless acts of great combinations of capital, and abrogate every law which puts a high premium upon such lawlessness.

The Philadelphia Record, the staunchest Democratic paper in Pennsylvania, rejoiced over the election of Gen. PALMER to the Senate, but is now telling him that "Democratic principles and policy have nothing to do with a municipal election in Chicago or anywhere else," and that "no party could be put to a worse use than to be harnessed to the corrupt municipal machine of one of our great cities." The people everywhere are beginning to understand that the government of a city is a purely business affair that can have no proper or wholesome connection with politics or political parties. The wisest sort of politicians have already learned that national parties can have no legitimate or wholesome connection with a municipal government. There is nothing in it for them but corruption, shame and scandal, developed through the perversion of their organizations to uses and purposes for which they were never intended or adapted.

To the demand of the advertisers of St. Louis for full and complete statements of the circulation of the newspapers in which they advertise the assent of the Post-Dispatch is prompt and unequivocal. The rates of advertising are based chiefly on circulation, and especially on circulation within the limits of the carriers' delivery of the respective papers, and any newspaper which refuses to make good its claims to such circulation incurs the suspicion that it has been claiming more than the facts would justify.

The speakers at the Democratic meetings are working hard for the Republican Council ticket, and doubtless the speakers at the Republican meetings are re-probating. Instead of fighting each other, these two parties should plainly take the same ring in running both of them in this contest. Both are united in the effort to defeat the Independent Municipal ticket and elect a Council that will "work in harmony with the Mayor."

At a time when an Italian war is impending over the country it would be highly improper for any newspaper to assume a belligerent attitude over a proposition to make its circulation publicly known. Calmness of mind and a judicial temper should be studiously cultivated for such an emergency.

The Republican Council ticket was concocted and nominated only to elect the Mayor's Council ticket. Every vote cast for any but the Independent Municipal ticket is, whether so intended by the voter or not, a vote to put the Council under the thumb of the Mayor and his "combine" of spoilsmen.

The municipal situation is highly suggestive, when we hear Democratic speakers give half their time to the Democratic ticket and put in the other half praising straight Republicans and urging them to vote the straight Republican ticket. This is not only unusual, but manifestly crooked.

Mr. F. L. McGinnis, representing the Post-Dispatch, will call on the floor of the State House on Monday next, and will call on merchants' dream, to the Post-Dispatch, "Midsummer" edition.

St. Louis, April 3, 1891.

To the Editors of the Post-Dispatch and Globe-Democrat, Post-Dispatch and Globe-Democrat.

GENTLEMEN:—The communication signed "Merchants" in the Post-Dispatch of Sunday and Monday, 22d and 23d ult., suggesting an examination of the circulation of your respective papers in the judgment of me is just and proper, but the privilege requested is one that, as purchasers of space in your papers, we feel that we have a perfect right to ask.

We pay the newspapers thousands of dollars yearly, the rates of each depending largely upon the persuasive ability of your respective solicitors to establish superiority of the particular paper that it represents.

What we want to know is the daily and Sunday circulation, and the number of copies that reach the country and city readers respectively. To obtain this information in an accurate and reliable manner will, in our judgment, require the services of gentlemen who have a practical knowledge of the workings of a newspaper office.

We therefore, gentlemen, beg that you will for our respective papers permit such a committee as may be selected by us to visit the offices of the Globe-Democrat, Post-Dispatch and Herald at such times as they may select for the purpose of making a thorough and exhaustive investigation of all books, papers and individuals that may aid and abet in the circulation of the Post-Dispatch and Globe-Democrat.

Believing that you are anxious to see ourselves to place before your patrons facts that will guide us in our future business relations with you, very respectfully yours,

Dear Sir:—A copy of the above communication has been sent to the Republic and Globe-Democrat. Your answer, either through the columns of the Post-Dispatch or addressed to me personally, will oblige.

Yours very respectfully,

President Famous Shoe &amp; Clothing Co.

St. Louis, April 3, 1891.

In order to reach all the advertisers whose signatures are affixed to the above document with the least delay the Post-Dispatch answers through its columns at once.

The Post-Dispatch will be most happy to have its committee make such an examination as is proposed, and will give the committee every possible assistance in its work.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Mrs. B. M. H.—July 30, 1890, fell on Monday.

P. M.—A half dollar of 1811 is valued at 30 cents.

CROCKERS.—September 8, 1890, fell on Tuesday.

VENICE.—The gentleman should be introduced to the late Mayor.

SUBSCRIBER.—Market street in Springfield, O., runs east and west.

G. S. Sawyer.—No premium on a quarter dollar of 1860 at present.

SUBSCRIBER.—A United States half-dollar of 1860 without arrows is worth 100.

J. K. F.—Quotations of values of foreign coins are not given in this column.

READER.—A half dollar of 1875 is not at a premium, nor is a quarter dollar of 1890.

A. F. M.—No premium on quarter dollars of 1843-44, a copper cent of 1843 is worth 10.

CORRESPONDENT.—July 14, 1870, fell on Thursday.

E. W. K.—A list of the books written by the author can be obtained at either of the libraries.

T. F. D.—Officers of the regular army do not draw pensions for wounds received in the civil war.

TIDWITKINS.—A silver five cent piece of 1858 is not a premium, and a one cent piece of 1825 is worth 2 cents.

J. B. H.—I. Address: Prof. C. Woodward, Washington, D. C.

The Washington Law School is one of the departments of Washington University.

READER.—None of the coins mentioned by you are at a premium, with the exception of the three dollar gold piece, which is valued at $1.50, that is if it has no arrows on it.

M. G.—Opinions differ greatly as to the value of the authors named, and it would be impossible to assign any one a rank above or below the others. It is largely a matter of personal preference.

SUBSCRIBER.—I. No changes in the cost of postage have been made since the issue of "A Trip to Chinatown." 2. Anna Ford was in her usual character, that of Mrs. Gayer, the lively widow.

G. M. S.—I. The local places of amusement are not given in this column. 2. The Bluebird, Jr., Co. has not announced when season will close, but it is probable that the season will be closed during the summer. You had best write to the manager of the Bluebird, Jr., Co., where they are holding out this week.

NEW ENGLISH FIGHTER.

BRITISH SPORTS THINK WELL OF FEATHER-WEIGHT CROWTHER.

Two West Point Cadets Settled a Difference With Their Fists—Jockey Garrison as a Money-Maker and Spender—General Sporting News.

England has a new feather-weight who will do credit to his name. Morgan Crowther, a native of New South Wales, stands 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighed on the night of his fight with Wilkinson 117 pounds. He first gained prominence three years ago when he defeated an English lad named Smith and Cook. He next fought a draw with Tom Withers, a clever fellow from Dudley. Then he defeated Charles Hipkins of Birmingham, Tom McCarthy of Dublin, the American, in Cheltenham Aug. 18, 1889, and after this victory challenged Nunc Wallace, and beat him in a six-round contest in Newmarket Oct. 15, of the same year. The principal event of his fighting career was of course his defeat. On Jan. 27 of last year he met Billy Baxter in a final fight at the now famous London School of Arms, Kennington Grove, for £100 a side, and Baxter won in seventeen rounds.

Crowther, however, on this occasion showed certain good points that won him many admirers, and the general opinion was that he would eventually prove a first-class man after he had gained more ring experience. After his defeat he fought a draw with Chaffey Hayman of Bristol and both were arrested. He did not fight again until he was 21, when he fought a draw with Wilkinson, but in the meantime improved himself wonderfully and made a remarkably good showing with Wilkinson. Crowther is well thought of by the English sports, there is nothing in his career to indicate that he would stand any show with either George Dixon or Cal McCarthy. Dixon gave Wallace enough fighting in a couple of rounds, and it is safe to say that Crowther would never be in it with either man.

WEST POINT STUDENTS FIGHT. FORT MADISON, Mo., April 3.—A private letter from a young man at the West Point Military Academy tells of a duel with fists which took place between Mr. Edward Gilchrist, who entered West Point from Giddis, and another cadet named W. E. Brice. The cause of the trouble was, it is asserted, an insulting remark made to young Gilchrist by Brice. The contest was short and decided. Gilchrist, knocking Brice out with a right-hander that nearly put him "to sleep," but broke several bones in Gilchrist's hand. Both young men are now in the hospital.

JOE GODDARD'S PLANS. GODDARD had decided not to come to America for a while. Ned Ryan, a Braidwood heavy-weight, and Bill Williams of Bathurst fought on the 2nd Feb. 25. It was agreed that the winner should fight Goddard. The fight took place before the fight took place. Both men are said to be very tough customers and have been anxious to meet Goddard for a long time. Ryan is over 6 feet tall and weighs about 175 pounds. Ryan was whipped by Williams once before, but after was in the ring. Ryan is said to have had more experience in the ring. Ryan is said to have had more experience in the ring. Ryan is said to have had more experience in the ring.

FEATHERWEIGHT TOMMY WARREN. Featherweight Tommy Warren knocked out Tommy Ward of Calumet, O., in five rounds gloves last night before the Audubon Club of New Orleans. The set-to was for a purse of $5,000, of which the loser received $100 of the purse. Ward had to finish his man inside of ten rounds. The loser received $100 of the purse. Ward had to finish his man inside of ten rounds. The loser received $100 of the purse. Ward had to finish his man inside of ten rounds.

FITZGERALD'S NAMES TERMS. CHICAGO, April 4.—George R. Clark, the backer of Bob Fitzsimmons, has telegraphed to Joe Harris, Jim Hall, and others, asking them to name some responsible party to accept the deposits for a fight between Hall and Fitzsimmons. Clark wants the match to be for a side bet of $10,000 a side and the purse offered by the Astoria Club of Oregon.

THE TURF. Edward H. Garrison, nicknamed the "Snapper," is a slim-built and rather good-looking young man of 27 or thereabouts. His upper lip is adorned with a small black mustache, and he is very neat in dress. Although somewhat addicted to gaudy diamonds and jewelry, he began riding under the tuition of W. C. McLaughlin, from whose stable he was graduated about 1887, and first became prominent through winning with Mr. James R. Keane's colt, Dutch Boy, in the Great Eastern handicap, run at Sheepshead Bay in 1888. The next year he finished first with War Eagle in the suburban. In 1890 he was engaged for the season by the Clifton Park stable, and his rise to the front rank has since then been steady and certain. In 1891 he and McLaughlin have been in partnership, which the latter obtained with a lead of about a dozen winning mounts. Garrison rode one year for Congressman Scott and another for Banker Belmont. Last year he was a free lance and rode for whom and whenever he pleased. He piloted Tenny in most of his races and was a most valuable stake, the richest of which were the Lortland and Tenny at Monmouth Park and the Great American at Rockaway, N. Y. During the year Garrison made several horse purchases and with them won a number of races. The "Snapper" is a great speculator, and while having command considerably more money at times, at others is often "broke."

Field and Farm says: It is to be presumed that at the outset the gates will be thrown wide open, and that no trainer or jockey at present in good standing will be refused a license upon application. After that they will have to look well to their reputations. It will not be necessary for any one to be detected in a flagrant act of dishonesty to receive a sentence of expulsion, as heretofore. If the members of the board, in their good judgment, deem the running of any stable of horses not above suspicion, they can revoke or refuse to renew the license of the trainer in charge or the jockey riding.
